FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

NEW RELIGION CHAIRMAN AT SGWU

Peter Slater, a McGill graduate who went on to study at Harvard and Cambridge, is returning to Montreal as associate professor and chairman of the department of religion at Sir George Williams University.

Slater, 35, has travelled extensively in southeast Asia and in India where he studied at the Centre for the Advanced Study of Philosophy at Madras University.

The new religion chairman has published numerous articles on themes such as the religious basis of social action and is currently completing a book concerned with a modern day reappraisal of St. Augustine.

Slater has taught at Harvard, Dartmouth and most recently at Haverford College in Pennsylvania.
